ISLANDLIVES CREATIVE COMMONS LICENSE FORM

A Creative Commons license is based on copyright. So the license applies to all works that are protected by copyright law. Creative Commons licenses give you the ability to dictate how others may exercise your copyright rights—such as the right of others to copy your work, make derivative works or adaptations of your work, to distribute your work and/or make money from your work.

UPEI has selected the "Attribution-Non-Commercial-Share-Alike" Creative Commons license as the standard: this means anyone using the material must attribute the work to the copyright holder (ie. the Canoe Cove Women's Institute), that commercial use must be cleared by the same, and any derivative works stemming from this work, will carry the same license.

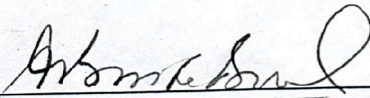

We, The Canoe Cove Women's Institute, wish to assign the Attribution Non-commercial Share Alike (by-nc-sa) Creative Commons license to our work, A History of Canoe Cove:

This license allows users to share (copy, distribute and transmit the work) and to remix (adapt the work) under the following conditions:

- Attribution. This refers to your right to always be identified as an original creator of the community history with which you were involved.
- Noncommercial. You may not use this work for commercial purposes.
- Share Alike. If you alter, transform, or build upon this work, you may distribute the resulting work only under the same or similar license to this one.
 - For any reuse or distribution, you must make clear to others the license terms of this work.
 - Any of the above conditions can be waived if you get permission from the copyright holder.
 - The author's moral rights concerning the attribution and integrity of their work are retained in this license.

The following statement should accompany the online archive of items from the Island Lives Collection:
